----- Designed as an informative and entertaining quiz tool, Accounting Genius allows all its users to learn, as well as revise key accounting concepts. The accounting concepts covered are based on the key Accounting topics taught in colleges and universities, and includes many common errors which typically confuse students in their first accounting course. Accounting Genius is also equipped with an invaluable side-by-side learning system. This system allows each user to highlight and edit their own answers, allowing them to keep track of the progress of their learning and revision. Principals Billions of dollars were forfeited to the IRS in 2012 due to IRS unclear rules. To make it harder to prevent IRS from forfeiture, IRS have decided to change their rules to be more confusing. No Payer Status! If you have Payer (one of the biggest risk for any business) status then the IRS will ask you to file a 1099 for the income that your business may have received. To avoid filing this 1099, you will have to quickly transfer the payer into Payor status. 1. Payer (100% tax for the entity) 2. Payor (0% tax for the entity) The IRS requires you to fill out a standard 1099 form and attach it to the 2010 return. In this situation, you should transfer the payer to payor as soon as possible. Don't forget that your earnings must be reported on your return. If the business is profitable and you received more than $10,000, you will need to pay taxes on the profits. If your business had losses, you won't have to pay taxes on the losses. For this reason, you will be able to claim $3,000 of the losses as a deduction on your 2010 return. You may not know, but you are also a business (even if you are just a sole proprietor). You need to report your income and you can't simply treat yourself as a sole proprietor. The IRS recognizes you as a business and will not change the way they consider you. If your business has earnings from a partnership or S corporation, you will need to file Form K-1. The business will provide you with a copy of the form. Your share of partnership income must be reported on your individual tax return. What the government does not want you to know is that a corporate
