Randomized phase II trial of tamoxifen and zoledronic acid with or without concurrent gemcitabine and carboplatin in women with advanced breast cancer. To evaluate the efficacy and safety of tamoxifen in combination with zoledronic acid or with a combination of gemcitabine and carboplatin in patients with metastatic breast cancer. Patients with measurable metastatic breast cancer and bone metastases were enrolled. Treatment consisted of either tamoxifen, zoledronic acid, or a combination of tamoxifen plus zoledronic acid and gemcitabine plus carboplatin. The primary endpoint was to evaluate the difference in objective response rate (ORR) and progression-free survival (PFS) for the three treatments. Of 120 patients enrolled, 58 patients were allocated to the tamoxifen-only group, 40

Gold and silver are very popular investments among the estimated 750 million euros worth of new-era bonds planned by the 17-nation currency bloc and the International Monetary Fund. France and Germany pushed through the euro zone financial stability pact, also known as the Stability and Growth Pact, on Saturday. "We agreed that from 2013, European governments will have to make a minimum purchase commitment of a quantity equivalent to their gold and silver reserves, or the equivalent currency," a euro zone source told Reuters. Euro zone governments have been reluctant to commit to such a procedure for fear of admitting that they are not good at investing their reserves. "I have always said, a government's financial and economic situation has nothing to do with how it invests its reserves," German Finance Minister Wolfgang Schaeuble told German radio on Monday. "Europe is not in good shape, for example, because of corruption but I could invest my money anyway. The important thing is what they do with their reserves." Last year, German Finance Minister Wolfgang Schaeuble told a newspaper: "We should not fake being able to invest our reserves. We can't live on them." Germany is the fourth largest holder of gold and silver reserves in the world, which are estimated at 390 tonnes. (Editing by Mark Heinrich)

(1918, 4th of May, 2010). The following article is drawn from the Italian socialist feminist journal(issue 10.07.2007-D-11.11.2007) and was published here for the first time in a translation by the US socialist feminist activist Jacqueline Stevens. It is the third article in the series "Women and the Socialist Feminist Movement. In an article in the journal Borocco that was published in 2005, Paola Zanca reminded us that in the 19th century, our history of feminism, there were similar international claims and proposals, but it was the struggle of the different workers' movements, whose first steps are shown, who left the traces for a sustainable sex-socialist feminism still alive today. Since 1910, the International Socialists
